One Halloween night, Carol decides to go trick-or-treating with her friends. But when she goes to the first house, the children are too scared to come to the door. Carol is heartbroken. She just wants to make friends and have some fun.

Carol tries again at the next house, but the same thing happens. The children are too scared to open the door. Carol is starting to feel very discouraged.

But then, she comes to a house where the children are different. They are not scared of Carol at all. They invite her in and give her lots of candy.

Carol is so happy. She finally has some friends.

Not Very Scary is a delightful story that will help children overcome their fears of cats and learn the importance of accepting others for who they are, regardless of their appearance. It is a heartwarming tale about friendship and acceptance that will resonate with children of all ages.
