

Parkinson Pete On Living And Dying With Parkinson Disease

Parkinson's disease is a progressive neurological disorder that affects movement, balance, and coordination. It is caused by the loss of dopamine-producing cells in the brain. Dopamine is a neurotransmitter that helps control movement. As dopamine levels decrease, movement becomes more difficult and can eventually lead to disability.

Parkinson's disease is a complex and challenging condition, but it is not a death sentence. With proper treatment and support, people with Parkinson's disease can live full and active lives.
